TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Population of the state.—Connecticut was one of the original thirteen states. According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, its population is 1,380,631, which represents an increase of 265,875, or 23.9 per cent, over the population in 1910. During the same period the population of the United States increased 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of Connecticut from 1790, the first Federal census year, to 1920, inclusive, together with the number and per cent of increase in each decade, in comparison with the per cent of increase for the United States as a whole:

Counties.—Connecticut has 8 counties, each of which increased in population during the last two decades (see Table 1). There have been no changes in county boundaries since 1910.

Density of population.—The total land area of the state is 4,820 square miles, and the average number of persons to the square mile in 1920 is 286.4 (see Table 1); in 1910 and 1900 the averages were 231.3 and 188.5, respectively.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which counties are divided are collectively termed

"minor civil divisions." In Connecticut the primary division of the county is the town, and in 1920 there were 168 towns. There are also 20 cities and 22 incorporated boroughs in the state which are not independent minor civil divisions but form parts of the towns in which they are located. Eleven of the cities and one borough, however, are coextensive with the towns in which they are located. (See Table 2.) One borough (Fair Haven East), which forms part of New Haven city and part of East Haven town, is not shown separately in Table 3.

POPULATION—CONNECTICUT.

Cities.—Connecticut has 3 cities of over 100,000 inhabitants—New Haven (162,537), Bridgeport (143,555), and Hartford (138,036). (See Tables 3 and 4.) The following summary shows, for each city or borough having 20,000 inhabitants or more in 1920, the population at each census for which figures are available, together with the number and per cent of increase during each decade.

1 Town and city not returned separately.

Urban and rural population.—The Census Bureau defines urban population as that residing in cities and other incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such incorporated places.

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of the state distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. As a result, the figures for each census covered by the table do not relate to exactly the same urban and rural territory, respectively, as those for the other two censuses, since certain territory which was rural in 1900 was urban in 1910 and 1920 and certain other territory which was rural in 1900 and 1910 is urban in 1920. The proportion of the population of Connecticut living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 59.9 per cent in 1900 to 65.6 per cent in 1910 and to 67.8 per cent in 1920.
